

The Hunger Project

Global Theory of Change

4/7/11

Sustainable, vibrant, healthy rural communities free from hunger & poverty

Government implementing community-driven anti-poverty strategies

Human rights supported and protected

Decentralized political power

Formation of Country-Led Strategies

Gender-based, rights-based country strategies

Strengthened multilateral collaborations

Public policies reflect THP values/approach (national, international level)

Electoral reform, decentralization in Bangladesh and India

Effective donor/investor cultivation

Strengthened partnerships with civil society

Replication and support of THP's approach to development

Strengthened partnerships with government

Community Impact

Gender Equity, Human Rights

Movement toward gender equality

Violence against women reduced

Women participate in decision making processes at all levels

Good Governance

Wide access to/use of social goods: health, education, water, etc.

Government accountability ~ Less corruption

Health and Nutrition

People, especially children, are healthy

Good health care incl. HIV/AIDS

Good nutrition

Water, Environment, and Sanitation

Sustainable environment: water, sanitation, woodlots

Food Security

People in partner communities have enough to eat

Income Generation

Wealth in village through investments in better homes, livestock, etc.

Many small businesses

End extreme hunger and poverty

Education

Literacy & numeracy

More children in school

Shifts in Community Capacity and Conditions

Literacy & Education

Increased adult literacy & increased access to skills training

Increased access to quality education for all children

Gender Equity & Human Rights

Increased awareness of political, social, economic rights (especially women's rights)

Increased gender equity within the family & community

Increased support & protection of indigenous cultures

Health and Nutrition

Increased access to/use of health services

Improvements in maternal and child health

Improvements in HIV/AIDS prevention and treatments

Income Generation

Women have continued access to financial services

Families are better equipped to meet household needs

Water, Environment, and Sanitation

Increased access to clean water & sanitation

Increased awareness about environmental sustainability

Improved legal protection and access to land

Good Governance

Local government is responsive to community needs

Increased transparency and accountability of local government

Food Security

Increased access to nutritious food at household & community levels

Improved agricultural systems

Movement toward food sovereignty

Advocacy & Alliances

Strengthened multilateral collaborations

Strengthened partnerships with civil society

Strengthened partnerships with government

Replication and support of THP's approach to development

Community Mobilization

Effective donor/investor cultivation

More effective community leadership (specifically by women)

Increased agency: Mind shift from "I cannot" to "I can"

Stronger collaborations/alliances within and among communities

THP Outputs

Education & Leadership training

Form partnerships with local NGOs/CBOs

Deploy animators, participatory action researchers

Local community development (health, education, agriculture)

Vision Commitment Action workshops

Establish local governance structures

Gender equity work

Microfinance (Africa)

Advocate for government accountability

MOBILIZING COMMUNITY

EMPOWERING WOMEN, CREATING AGENCY

PARTNERING WITH LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Government builds & equips schools, health facilities, latrines, & other infrastructure

CYCLE OF SUSTAINABLE CHANGE

CYCLE OF SUSTAINABLE CHANGE

Increased resources

Capitalizing on efforts

Replication of the THP model

M & E: Future Up to now